

Poser

He doesn't hold his boyfriend's hand in public because you threatened him
She's starving herself because you said her skinny jeans don't fit like they used to
He works two jobs just so you won't know he's poor
She sits alone at school because you called her "foreigner"

He cuts his wrists but you can't see under his hoodie
She's an atheist at heart but you won't know because you're the reason she can't say it
He's afraid to love again because you lead him on
She's afraid to talk about the time you touched her wrong

He joined a gang so you would leave him alone
She can't even get up in the morning but you tell her "get over it"
He never knew his parents and you said it was because they never wanted him
She had a miscarriage and you called the baby an accident

He got out of jail but you avoid him because you only see "criminal"
She's white so you think "basic" and "racist"
He's in a wheelchair but all you see is "disabled"
She's a single mom raising three young children because you walked away

He works a typical 9 to 5 because you forced him into your dream job
She's paying to see a therapist because you never stopped slut shaming her
And he's living on the streets but you'll walk right by him

You don't know their stories
Don't write their chapters